

Biographical Information

Patrick Heggy

Mr. Heggy's work focuses on helping businesses explore trends and emerging issues impacting the future of work, leadership and organizational change. He developed his leadership expertise as an officer in the United States Marine Corps while serving as a Signals Intelligence Officer with the National Security Agency. Prior to joining Global Foresight Associates (GFA) Mr. Heggy served as Project Manager for the Institute for Alternative Futures, where he applied his leadership expertise to projects forecasting the future of health care, work and organizational development. He has worked at the forefront of implementing new models of leadership and management, helping clients restructure business models in response to future trends.

He has managed numerous consulting engagements including developing futures reports, scenario projects and futures scans for clients such as United States Pharmacopoeia, the Department of Health and Human Services, the American Cancer Society, the National Aircraft Resale Association, the American Red Cross, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Sarasota County government.

Mr. Heggy has been a featured speaker at corporate and trade groups, providing clients with forecasts and implications of the major trends affecting work and business. He holds a B.S. in Journalism from the University of Kansas and a Masters Degree History from George Mason University.